

HARD WORDS BY MR. BONAPARTE

Secretary Of The Navy Says The Trusts Are Like Big Pig Pens, In His Speech.

PLEADS FOR REPUBLICAN MAJORITY

Makes Startling Talk At Denton, Maryland, This Afternoon That Startles The Old Time Leaders Of The G. O. P.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Denton, Md., Oct. 31.—"Trusts are like pig-pens in which the big strong overfed hogs have crowded the little ones away from their feed and have gotten more than their share," was the startling denunciation of Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte in a political speech here this afternoon.
Talks for Congress
Secretary Bonaparte spoke in the interests of William H. Jackson, the republican nominee for congress, and his entire speech was for the continuance of the republican majority in the next congress so that the republican doctrines might be made into laws for the benefit of the voters.
Roosevelt's Idea
He said: "Our President has always wanted a square deal for everyone whether pig, lion or man and under his leadership the republican party has tried to put and keep each of our big trusts in its own proper pen; where it can not crowd any of the little fellows out of it."
Subject to Law
"To this end he has sought the aid of congress and of the courts to keep the corporation and individual wealth of this great country in due subjection to the law and not show discrimination between the rich and the poor."
Equal Justice
"To make the rich man poor would make the poor man poorer, but he has endeavored to make the rich man law-abiding so that the poor man can become rich if they will and congress as well as the courts have responded to his appeal."
Stirring Appeal
The stirring appeal of Bonaparte has caused considerable comment throughout the different political circles and its influence is said to be far reaching owing to the fact he is a member of the President's cabinet and doubtless gives his opinions.

NEITHER PRESENT AT DIVORCE TRIAL

Castellane Separation Suit Heard—Decree Plead For on Documentary Evidence.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, Oct. 31.—The Castellane divorce case was heard this afternoon but neither the Count nor Countess were present in the court room. Maitre Cruppi, appearing for the countess, pleaded for divorce upon the documentary evidence submitted.
In an extended review the counsel declared the countess at the beginning of the suit was not acting under any influence, but solely for the purpose of ending forever the peril of the dissolution of her household. He explained the marriage contract by which the countess married properly was established from the very beginning and stated the domestic difficulties are over the question of money. The treatment soon followed. The count even struck the plaintiff before the servants. When he reached the question of infidelity charged against the count, Cruppi did not mention the names, designating the co-respondents as "Madame A" and "Madame B." Cruppi asked that the Countess be given the custody of the three children.

LAST WEEK HAS SHOWN TEMPER

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ARE CLOSING THE CAMPAIGN.

THE FIGHT IS VERY BITTER

La Follette Does Not Speak for Connor
While Senator Spooner Does.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 31.—The last week of the campaign in Wisconsin is progressing in such a way as seemingly to doubly assure the prediction of a month ago that the normal ratio of democratic and republican votes would be cast, and that the republicans would elect their entire state ticket and ten members of congress, one representative, C. H. Welles in the sixth district falling to the democrats. Senator Spooner speaks for the whole ticket but interest in this campaign has been centered not on the clashing of arguments between the democrats and republicans, but upon the conduct of Senator R. M. La Follette with reference to W. D. Connor, chairman of the republican state central committee, political enemy of La Follette and nominee for lieutenant governor. The junior senator has spent a week in the campaign, making his own dates, and while he has not expressly named Connor in denunciatory language, it is plain that La Follette would be pleased to have the Marshallfield millionaire politician dumped next Tuesday. While it is certain that thousands of La Follette followers will split the ticket and cross out the name of Connor, his defeat is not suspected, for this state has a normal republican majority of nearly 100,000 votes. Aside from the contest for the district at-large of public sentiment in the campaign, The Milwaukee fight is strenuous and extremely bitter, but the feeling around the state seems to be exceedingly quiet. Gov. Davidson is attracting good meetings wherever he goes, doubtless due to the fact that he is governor, more than to the yearning of the voters to listen to political discussions. Senator La Follette is also greeted by generous audiences, assured always to this orator of established reputation for eloquence. General apathy is abroad in this state so far as politics goes, and in this situation has vanished the democratic hope of starting a tide of public sentiment that might give them a look-in at the offices. John A. Ayward of Madison, the democratic candidate for governor, is making a campaign for earnestness, but the fact that he has session after session worked here as legislative attorney for public service corporations, has been spread everywhere by the republican spellbinders, and this takes some of the edge of sincerity off from the democratic candidate's denunciations of greedy corporations.

BIG YOUNG FELLOWS FOR TWENTY ROUNDS

Sam Berger, Aged 22 and Weighing 200, to Meet Al Kaufmann, Year
Younger and of Less Weight.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 31.—Local followers of pugilism, who have been deprived of their favorite sport since the catastrophe of last spring, are on edge in anticipation of tonight's go between the two big fellows, Al Kaufmann and Sam Berger. The contest is to be pulled off in a new skating rink with a capacity for 6,500 persons, and the indications are that every seat will be filled when the gong calls the fighters into the ring. Both Kaufmann and Berger have been training faithfully and reports from both their quarters say they are in the pink of condition. The fight is expected to be a lively one from start to finish as the two are regarded as very evenly matched. Berger is 22 years old, weighs 200 pounds in condition, and is almost six feet three inches tall. Kaufmann is a year younger, a few pounds lighter, and an inch shorter. The slight disparity in size, Kaufmann makes up in experience, as he has been in the professional game longer than Berger and has had more battles. The scheduled distance is twenty rounds. Jack Welch has been selected to referee the contest.

SWEEPING VICTORY AWAITS REPUBLICANS IN MICHIGAN

In Five Congressional Districts Democrats
Have Failed To Put Up Candidates,
And Do Not Expect Good Showing.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—The present campaign in Michigan has been one of the tamest seen in late years. Strenuous efforts are now being made by the managers of both parties to arouse public interest and to bring about something like a hot finish to the contest. To this end the democrats are planning meetings to be held throughout the state between new and election day. The republicans will close their campaign with a big rally in this city next Saturday night. The meeting will be held in the Light Guard Armory and will be addressed by Governor Warner, Senator Burrows, Congressman William Alden Smith, Edward Denby and other party leaders of note.
The general apathy apparent on all sides is due almost solely to the feeling that the republicans are as sure of carrying the state as the democrats are certain to win out in Texas. The republicans have carried everything before them in Michigan for ten years and there is no reason to expect any different results from the campaign this year. Charles H. Kinnear, the democratic candidate for governor, has been making an energetic and capable campaign, but he has failed to arouse any great amount of enthusiasm among the rank and file. As a consequence, but little interest is taken in the fight for state offices. The only question in that of the republican majority. From present indications the vote will be unusually light, and on this account Governor Warner's majority will be reduced. The lack of interest in the contest for governor is equally true of nearly all the congressional contests. In five districts the democrats have failed to put up candidates. The solid republican delegation in congress will likely be maintained unless local complications upset the calculations in the Detroit district.
The legislature is expected to be republican by a large majority, insuring the election of a republican to succeed Senator Alger. Just at present more interest is taken in the senatorial contest than in any other electoral, political calendar. The candidates are William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids, William C. McMillan of Detroit, Charles E. Townsend of Jackson, Arthur Hill of Saginaw and Henry McMoran of Port Huron. Smith's strength lies chiefly in the western part of the state. McMillan is believed to be strongest in the upper peninsula. The other candidates claim little more than their respective congressional districts.

SOME CRITICISM FOR ROOSEVELT

ON HIS APPOINTMENT OF COR-TELYOU TO TREASURY.

MINUS BANKING KNOWLEDGE

But Then Only Two Secretaries Have Had Financial Training—Washington Gossip.

(By William Wolff Smith.)
 Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.—(Special Correspondence.)—The expected shifting in the cabinet and the placing of Postmaster General Cortelyou at the head of the treasury department, has caused some criticism because Mr.
 Cortelyou has had no financial or banking experience. Several of our greatest treasury secretaries have without previous financial training,
 notably Chase, Manning, Fairchild, Windom and Sherman. Sherman, it is true, as senator had made a study of national finance. Only two of all the secretaries of the treasury were known as great bankers before they became the head of the financial affairs of the government—McCulloch and Gage. One of the strangest things that have happened in political and administrative life was the first bringing into office life Hugh McCulloch, who was three times appointed secretary of the treasury. At the outbreak of the civil war Mr. McCulloch was the president of the Bank of the State of Indiana, a financial institution that had weathered the storm of the panic of 1854, and one of the less than half a dozen banks of the country that did not suspend specie payment
 during that great financial stress.

When it was first proposed to establish the present national banking system Mr. McCulloch strongly opposed it.
 He was proud of the great institution of which he was the directing head, and believed it could not be met all its engagements and therefore did not want to see it put out of business by another system. He visited Washington to lay his views before Secretary Chase and the committees of congress, spending some time here in the effort to defeat the bill. He was not successful, and a few months later the bill became a law.
 About that time he was on another visit to the east, passing through Washington. He called at the treasury department and left his card for Secretary Chase, and departed for Baltimore, and from there to Binghamton,
 New York. On his arrival at Binghamton he found waiting for him three or four urgent dispatches from the treasury department. He followed him from Baltimore, asking him to return at once to Washington and accept the new position of comptroller of the currency.

Mr. McCulloch returned to Washington, protested to the secretary that he had opposed the bill creating the office and the system, of banking, and that to accept the place would require him to sever his connection with the bank of which he was the head, at a great pecuniary sacrifice. Mr. Chase urged upon him his duty as a patriotic citizen to come to the help of the government in the crisis it was then passing through, and finally he consented to accept the office. He organized the bureau, managed it, so efficiently that later Mr. Lincoln called him to the secretaryship. On the accession of Mr. Johnson to the presidency he invited Mr. McCulloch to remain in the cabinet, which he did during the Johnson administration.
 At the close of his service he became connected with a great banking house in New York and London, and just before the close of Arthur's administration he was once more called to the head of the treasury department.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings; a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.
 There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. This is the only necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanston, the sat-est and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Distase, Aspic Pepsin, a little Nux, Gluden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill.,
 writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feelings. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Judge L. R. Wilfer, formerly of St.
 Louis, but for the past five years attorney general of the Philippine islands, has been in Washington arranging for his departure to his new post as judge of the newly created United States court at Shanghai, China. Heretofore American consuls have been clothed with judicial powers, but as many of them are not lawyers their decisions are often unsatisfactory. Congress, therefore, created a court for China, and while the headquarters will be located at Shanghai, sessions will also be held at Canton, Hankow, Tientsin and other treaty ports. The jurisdiction will reach all civil and criminal cases where an American citizen may be a party.
 Judge Wilfer is a graduate of Yale,
 and until 1896 was a staunch democrat.

 departments here by a story to the effect that where a man and wife were employed in the departments one or the other would have to sacrifice their job. Investigation shows that for the present, at least, no action of this character has been decided upon.
 There appears to be no good reason why a man and wife should both be employed by the government. Before this cabinet officers have taken consideration of marriages between clerks and clerks having wives or husbands in other departments. Public office is often regarded as a private snap, and it is here, where clerks marry and continue in office drawing two salaries in effect, if not in law. Many such marriages are concealed for fear that one of the other of the contracting parties may lose their position. It is rather remarkable that while a woman in a department may marry another clerk and continue to hold her position, if she should marry a man outside the departments she would likely lose it. As far back as Cleveland's time cabinet officers established the custom of discharging female clerks when they married men outside the departments. Why should they be permitted to hold positions if they married men outside the departments? It is a mystery, but it is not for the fact that a department clerk is considered to be a punishment that fits the crime.

One of the splendid results of phys-culate filed first had prior claim and

MYSTERIES THAT ARE MYSTERIOUS

BEWITCHING PLANS MADE FOR THIS EVENING'S JOYS.

THE GHOSTS AND GOBLINS

Walk Forth; Gates Disappear; Strange
and Mysterious Sounds
Are Heard.

Double, double, toil and trouble,
 Fires burn and caldrons bubble.

Ancient and mysterious customs will be evoked tonight that the future may be disclosed. Witches will soar on high on the faded broom-handle with black cats as their familiars.
 Ghosts and goblins will play strange pranks, gates disappear mysteriously, door-bells be rung in a truly exasperating manner and gruesome sounds and sights be seen. This is the mysterious of mysterious nights, the one night in the year when age is forgotten and young and old unite in the ancient custom of bobbing for apples, reading the future in sand and by the mirrors, while the small boy revels in the license he thinks his own of playing pranks with door-bells and gates.

Much Mystery.
 All Halloween is the one night in the year that has no exact duplicate.
 Our forefathers in Scotland and other parts of Europe lighted bonfires on this night to drive away the evil spirits, games were played which have been handed down to us in this day and age. Halloween is really the vigil of All Saints or All Saints' Day, one of the fetes of the Catholic and Episcopal church. Like most of the modern customs the games played tonight have all come down through the ages from pagan days when fairies and ghosts and witches were believed to have customs have been added from time to time, but the spirit is the same today as it was centuries ago.

Age of Philosophers.
 This age, philosophers and students tell us, is drifting away from the deep and stupid into the realm of the light and the sensible. "Never," says a noted magazine writer, "have there been so many delightful people as now. People have drifted away from the heavy and uninteresting, and consequently unprofitable, into the realm of the agreeable, the entertaining and the beneficial. The result is plainly seen in the changed demeanors of the human race." In other words, people are beginning to discover that they are here to have a good time, not a bad time. So Halloween gradually is coming to be celebrated more and more, and on this night the mischievous boys are in their glory.

Many Customs.
 There are so many customs that abound on this evening. Everything is bewitched and everybody is supposed to believe in the potency of the fire, the efficacy of the cake and the significance of the apple. The last-named is one of the favorite customs.
 The apples are placed in a tub of water and the youngsters dive for them.
 If one succeeds in getting one dripping and triumphant, he is rewarded with hurrahs on the part of the company.

The True Love.
 Another old custom that originated in Ireland is, when the young women would know whether their lovers are faithful, to put three nuts upon the bars of the grate, naming the nuts after the lovers. If a nut cracks or jumps the lover will prove unfaithful.
 If it begins to blaze or burn he has a regard for the person making the trial. If the nuts named after the girl and her lover burn up together,
 they will be married.

There are many weird practices also on this night, such as walking down stairs backward with a candle in one hand and a looking glass in the other.
 The person whose face appears in the mirror as you reach the last step will be your betrothed.

No Other Night.
 There is perhaps no other night in the year when the popular imagination is given freer play than on this occasion. It is clearly a relic of pagan times, and there is nothing in the church observance of the ensuing day of "All Saints" to have originated such extraordinary notions as are connected with this celebrated festival, or such remarkable practices as those by which it is distinguished.

 cakes try Mrs. Austin's.

 telligent man, will doubtless be out in force

WAS A DISTINCT SHOCK.

Two Young Women in Maine Describe a Scarecrow Who Retaliated.

Two Auburn young ladies have not yet recovered from the shock they received when out riding, the other day.
 "Oh, did you ever see anything so funny!" exclaimed one to her companion, as they rode past a big farm.
 "I should think the crows would be scared anyway by that thing. That scarecrow is a good imitation of a human being, but Oh! it is so stiff and angular, and did you ever see such outlandish clothes! That skirt is skimpy enough, I must say, and just notice the gawky lines of the waist, but Oh! ye gods and little fishes, did you ever see such a hat!"
 "Strange," interrupted her companion, "how they managed that hoe-the scarecrow holds it as natural as life—and, say, s-a-a-a-y!" Oh!

"Perhaps you wouldn't wear your best clothes if you had to hoe in a garden," shouted the very angry
 "scarecrow" to the great consternation of the Auburn young ladies and to the no small discomfort of the horse, for it was a hot day and he objected seriously to being urged so rapidly over the ground.—Lewiston

COMING THEATRICAL EVENTS

Thursday evening, Nov. 1—Eddie Roy and company in the musical comedy "The Earl and the Girl."

Saturday afternoon and evening, Nov. 3—Mabel Barrison and company in the musical play "The District Leader."

Miss Nellie McCoy, whose graceful dancing has made quite a striking hit three years ago, and her parents before her for three generations were actors. Figuratively speaking, Miss McCoy has danced her way around the world. There is hardly a country in which she has not performed her revues. The last few seasons, the McCoy sisters were with Weber & Fields, but both girls had ambitions for higher fields to conquer, and Miss Nellie McCoy sought musical comedy. She was at one time with "Pantana."

fills it with great credit is a compliment to the young woman's abilities. "The Earl and the Girl" will be presented at the Myers theatre Thursday, Nov. 1, and will be one of the big musical comedy events of the season.

Aside from the fact that "The District Leader" is equipped with the brightest, snappiest chorus on the road and mounted in a fifty-thousand-dollar scenic setting and costuming, at the same time it has the heart interest in the story itself that appeals to every patriotic and fun-loving American. The story deals with the vital living side of our great commonwealth, politics, love and sunshine. The strands are so cleverly woven that the spectator is carried from laughter and tears to tears and laughter in the same breath. The author's treatment of the story is startlingly fresh and unconventional. The qualities coupled with Miss Barrison's crisp style, which has made her so famous in "The Wizard of Oz," "Babes in Toyland," "The Land of Nod," etc., go to make a production equalled by no company in town this season. As an added feature, Joseph B. Howard, the author of "The District Leader," "The Umpire," "The Land of Nod," "His Highness the Bey," "The Isle of Bong Bong," and a score of song hits, will appear in the cast, playing the title role of "The District Leader." The production will be presented entire as produced at Wallack's theatre, New York, last April, where it made a phenomenal run. This is the first engagement since its New York production. "The District Leader" will appear at the Myers theatre on Saturday, Nov. 2, for two performances, matinee and evening.

WHITE SLAVE TRADE IS HIT

W. C. T. U. WORKER TELLS OF WOMEN SOLD AT AUCTION.

Empathically Declares That Traffic Exists in New York, the Victims Being Held in Captivity.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 31.—There are 10,000 young women in Chicago who are obliged to work at five dollars a week, and there are 5,000 saloons there, too, said Mrs. Lurinda B. Smith, of Kansas, at the Tuesday afternoon session of the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, in presenting to the convention the difficulties with which the refuge works of the organization have to contend.

Mrs. Smith made a spirited appeal for the efforts of all the delegates from all parts of the country to put a stop to the white slave trade. The speaker cited instances of young women held in captivity and sold at auction in New York, and asked why it was 40 years after the civil war had been fought for the liberation of the black slaves, that slavery of young women should be tolerated in this country?

She said that one of the most hopeful signs of the times was when the 17 nations recently banded together for the suppression of this awful vice. At night there was a demonstration of the principles and methods of the W. C. T. U. in Parsons' theater by the Y. and L. T. L. branches and 38 other departments of the union.

A STORY FROM INDIANA.

"These people who are so concerned about the high cost of living," says the American Economist, "and the prices demanded by so-called trusts can read the following with no little interest and a considerable amount of instruction." John L. Moorman of Knox, republican district chairman for the Thirtieth Indiana Congressional district, said recently:

"We are having few speeches in the Thirtieth district. About all we are doing up there is to tell one story, and it seems to do the work better than speeches. Listen! Not long ago a farmer in Nebraska, Bryan's state, went to a buggy dealer to buy a buggy. He found one that suited him and the price was $62. The farmer happened to remember that about a dozen years ago he had bought a buggy just like it from the same dealer for $65 and he mentioned the fact. The dealer went to his books and found this to be true. 'But,' said the dealer, 'my books show that you did not pay cash for it, because you did not have the money. You hauled in 500 bushels of corn and gave it to me for the $65 buggy.' Now, I'll tell you what I will do. If you are willing to bring me now 500 bushels of corn, I will give you the $62 buggy, a self-binder worth $125, a sulky plow worth $35 and a walking plow worth $12. In addition to this I will hand you $16 in money." The dealer could have carried out the proposition, too, for corn is worth 50 cents a bushel now, while at that time it was worth only 11 cents.

"About the same time, that this farmer was buying a buggy for $65 and paying for it with 500 bushels of corn at 11 cents a bushel other farmers in Nebraska were selling spring lambs to the butchers for $2 apiece, while full grown sheep were sold in Ohio for 50 cents a head. Now the Nebraska farmer gets 50 cents for his corn and $1 for his lamb, and sheep in Ohio sell at $5.50 to $4. Not only that; the value of farm lands in the United States has increased over six billion dollars since 1900, and they were in 1900 worth fully six billions more than in 1895. The farmers are all stand-patters on the tariff, and they know the reason why."

That's the whole thing in a nutshell and it speaks volumes for the protective tariff and a wise administration. The complaint of high prices falls flat when sources of income are considered and the volume taken into account.

The farmer bought a $55 buggy for 500 bushels of corn during the Cleveland administration. Today the same amount of corn buys $324 worth of vehicles and farm machinery and gives him back $16 for pin money.

Thus it is all along the line, from the wage-earner to the producer. The times could not be better if they were hand-made, and it is a good time to let well enough alone.

The democratic party with a few brothers-in-law, like Cummins of Iowa, is howling for tariff reform. Why? The party for an issue. It is out and wants to get in. The disgruntled relatives for effect and cheap notoriety. Let the tariff alone, continue a republican administration, and the country will continue to prosper.

MUNICIPAL OPERATION

"The finance committee of the council has been notified that the best asset of the city—its great revenue producer—is fast wearing out," says the Chicago Tribune. "That depreciable asset is the water works system, from which the city has drawn the money for the construction of tunnels, intercepting sewers, and other costly works. Municipal officers with no practical training and believing apparently that the mains and other appurtenances of the water system would never wear out have failed to use any part of the surplus revenues for the upkeep of the plant. They have spent yearly surpluses with no thought of the future. Partly because of the deterioration of the system and partly because of loose management in many ways, matters have come to a pass where 75 per cent of the water pumped is wasted. For a private corporation that would mean bankruptcy and the appointment of a receiver."

"The period of reckless management is about reaching an untoward end. The city engineer estimates that it will cost about $10,000,000 to renovate a system which, to a considerable extent, is almost worn out. The work which ought to have been done year by year during the last third of a century will now have to be crowded into a few years. The money for repairs can be obtained only from the water revenues, but they will not be able to stand so sudden and severe a strain."

"The situation is a disagreeable and even a painful one, but it is the inevitable consequence of municipal operation as it is usually conducted. The politicians who assume charge of municipal plants are unwilling to spend money for maintenance. They prefer to use the receipts in other ways. That unwillingness has wrecked many a municipal plant, which has been allowed to run down until it became valueless."

"The city of Chicago has to rehabilitate the water system. New sewers have to be constructed in the business district. Where is the money to come from? And when will the voters think it worth while to elect men who will spend the money intelligently when it shall have been obtained?"

"The Tribune was for years a staunch advocate of municipal ownership and an object lesson like the city water plant was necessary to bring the paper to its senses."

For the past two years Mayor Dunne has been vigorously opposed in his traction schemes, for the fact was fully appreciated that if the city could not run its water plant it certainly had no use for a street railway system.

The experience of Chicago is being repeated in all cities where public utilities are owned and operated by municipalities, and furnishes all the argument necessary against government ownership.

The principle is wrong, for neither the city nor government has the right to engage in private business and if the right is conceded the ability is lacking and always will be.

NEWSPAPER MILEAGE

For many years it has been the custom for railway companies to contract with newspapers to publish time tables and such other advertising as might be desired, and pay for the service with transportation at the regular rates.

The tickets used were not in the nature of a pass, but were identical with other tickets, except that they were not transferable. This precaution was used to keep them out of the hands of scalpers and to protect the company.

The newspapers charged the railroad commercial rates for advertising and were paid in transportation at regular rates. It was a business proposition, pure and simple, and no favoritism was shown by either party.

Papers whose editorial policy was antagonistic to railroads were not discriminated against and papers which favored the roads enjoyed no special privileges.

The framers of the interstate commerce law, passed at the last session of congress, sought to abolish all passes and free transportation, and the commission now interprets the law as intending to include newspaper advertising mileage.

The position is indefensible and will be so decided when a test case is made, for it lacks the elements of justice and common sense.

The newspaper gives value received for every railroad ticket issued, and the company is paid in a commodity worth par in every market where advertising is sold.

In the meantime the railroads are endeavoring to comply with the rulings of the commission. It is quite probable that some way will be found to meet the emergency until the injustice can be remedied.

It is quite possible that Senator La Follette visited New Jersey on a double mission. His first ambition was to aid Mr. Colby in reforming the state and he may have hoped to purify the Standard Oil company through its representative, Mr. Freeman, his hostage. The state has recovered from the shock and the oil octopus is still doing business, but the senator enjoys the satisfaction of knowing that he "seen his duty and done it."

London had an army of 200,000 unemployed last winter and the number will exceed that figure before the holidays this year. The city has a still larger army that is working at from $3 to $10 per week. These are the conditions in free-trade England, and yet some Americans are attempting to place this country on the same basis.

The last issue of Bryan's "Commoner" is devoted to one of his letters from abroad and a speech half a mile long delivered by the Nebraska orator at Joplin, Missouri. Bryan enjoys hearing himself talk more than any man in the country, but he is talking against time and to no purpose.

Stevens Point was favored with the opening speech of Senator Spooner last Monday night. The senator spoke for the entire state ticket, and said that he could not understand how any man who supported the primary law could support an independent candidate. No names were used, but inference was plain.

Democracy is claiming that President Roosevelt has stolen their thunder and that his reform measures are of democratic origin. The populists say that everything is coming their way, while the socialists are hopeful: "The world do move."

Senator La Follette boasts of the fact that he voted with the democrats last winter. He puts it egotistically that the democrats voted with him. He is devoting his time to flirting with the Bryan party during the campaign.

If consistency is a jewel, the former governor of the state is destitute of that kind of apparel. He shouted himself hoarse over the primary law, and now refuses to abide by the people's verdict.

Senator Spooner is speaking to good houses in the northern part of the state. His time is fully occupied and Janesville people will not have an opportunity of hearing him.

PRESS COMMENT.

Despite His Handicap.
Milwaukee Sentinel: In spite of the fact that he was a corporation lawyer Abraham Lincoln managed to deserve a high place in the esteem of his countrymen.

Question: Who is it?
St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Socialist, American style: A politician worth many millions who runs several newspapers devoted to self-puffery.

Bryan and Tillman Dined.
Chicago News: Mr. Bryan and Senator Tillman dined together Sunday evening. We hope that little Willie Hearst did not experience any burning sensation of the ears at the time.

Maybe It Isn't.
Evening Wisconsin: The New York World says—but what does it matter? If the Christian Scientists don't believe it, can it be so?—and besides, it may not be so, any way.

Sounds Abjectly Enough.
Exchange: The Loudon Fortnightly Review is worried by the yestern spelling lead. "Sheer linguistic degeneration." How Grover Cleveland would have liked to say that!

Chafing at His Bit.
El Paso Herald: No broncho ever yearned more to break a picket line and jump into a field of alfalfa than Mr. Roosevelt yearns to hop into the New York election fight.

Sneers, Idle Sneers!
Milwaukee Journal: The situation in Wisconsin is so saturated with republican harmony that outside orators have taken warning from Gov. Cummins' example and they give Wisconsin a wide berth.

Loyally Follow the Queen.
Exchange: Queen Alexandra has adopted the featherless bonnet as a regular institution, and American women, for whom the revolution of 1776 never had any legal effect in such matters, will loyally follow suit.

Still, It's Mighty Interesting.
Rockford Register-Gazette: Mrs. Eddy is and isn't, was and wasn't, will and won't. It depends upon which you read, the Christian Science newspaper bureau articles or the press' own stuff. How silly it all is!

Great Men's Birthdays Forgotten.
Chicago Record-Herald: Monday was the anniversary of the birth of John Keats. It would be unfair, however, to blame people because so few of them remembered it. Why, most of us have even forgotten when John L. Sullivan was born.

When Nobody's Anybody.
Exchange: There is a reasonable explanation why there are no politicians of overshadowing magnitude; they are all natural born leaders. As W. S. Gilbert sang of the kingdom where everybody was a duke, "When everybody's somebody, nobody's anybody."

The States Weary of It.
Omro Herald: It will be a great relief to state readers when the Milwaukee dailies get through talking McGovern. It's sickening stuff, and everybody has enough of it. McGovern should take his medicine like all sensible men who meet defeat at the primaries. It is to be hoped he will be thoroughly wiped out.

A Household Ornament Questioned.
Chicago News: It is claimed that the members of the Illinois national guard left a trail of Chicago slang in Dixie. It is a pity they didn't leave all of it. We Chicagoans could go on living just as pure and noble lives, voting just as intelligently and doing other commendable things minus the slang which we now think we could not keep house without.

Ignoble Stay-at-homers.
Wausau Central Wisconsin: While sleep is necessary to all the men who are always dozing is of no use to himself or anyone else. In matters political this is especially true. Many an election has been lost because the man with the ballot, instead of waking up and having a voice in the affairs of state and nation, preferred to stay at home and doze.

Passing Prices on Way Up.
Superior Telegram: From present reports, when we raise our eyes to heaven on Thanksgiving day to give thanks for all the blessings we enjoy they will pass the prices of turkeys on the way up. And even the cranberries are said to be in the hands of a trust this year. Oh, well—chicken and apple sauce is pretty good.

Must Come in or Suffer.
El Paso Herald: Until Canada comes inside the ring fence and has a vote, there will be little consolation for her in the matter of her numerous kicks about the management of the great lakes. Her latest woe is an allegation that the amount of water diverted into the Mississippi by the Chicago drainage canal is interfering with navigation in her harbors.

A Boost for Hearst.
Darlington Democrat: People in Wisconsin do not know Hearst very well. They have to depend for their knowledge upon newspapers which are rivals of his, and their reports are colored so as to mislead. Hearst is a big man and he has a big fortune and he and all he has is dedicated to the emancipation and uplifting of the masses. That is the kind of a man Hearst is.

Passport System Not Wanted.
Oshkosh Northwestern: Of all the foolish proposals the recommendation of Tillman that we adopt the European passport system is about the worst. One of the chief things that make a man glad he was wise enough to be born in America is the lack of necessity of making a visit to a police station every time he lands in a town or leaves one. If he lives a decent life he need never come in contact with the police, and his way and days are free from the spying of detectives. The passport system means that everybody is to be watched and under surveillance; it means that everybody is a ticket-of-leave man.

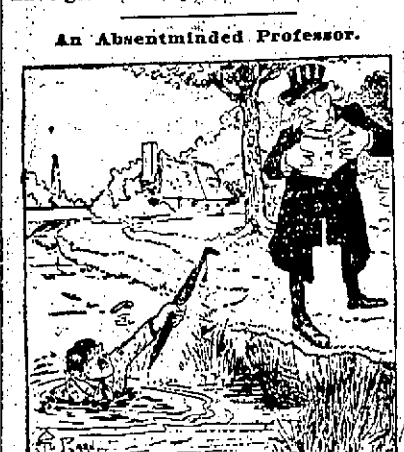

Why Not Eat Dogs?
Evening Wisconsin: The meat problem has been an important one in Germany for a number of years past, owing to the fact that it has been made intricate by the manipulations of politicians for the votes of the agrarian population. The farmers desired high tariffs and stringent restrictions against foreign meats, in the interest of their own products, while the dwellers of the cities demanded freer importation for the relief of the meat famine. Prices of meats of all kinds have been high in Germany since the agrarians became influential in politics, and the working-class have found it increasingly difficult to secure meat products. This is the cause of resort to the consumption of horseflesh, which is becoming quite general in Germany, and also the utilization of the flesh of canines.

An Absentminded Professor.
The Professor—What does that foolish fellow mean by so persistently offering me an umbrella on such a lovely day as this?

A Flower Clock.
There was a queer gardener who thought of making a timepiece of a flower bed. Whether he ever did it or not, he said it could be done. He declared that the time is known at which more than 50 kinds of flowers open and shut. For instance, a bed of common dandelions would show it was 5:30 in the morning, and at 8:30 at night, respectively, for these flowers open and shut at the times named, frequently to the minute. The common hawkweed opens at eight in the morning, and may be depended upon to close within a few minutes of two in the afternoon.

TRAGEDIES IN MEN'S LIVES.

Tombstone Inscriptions That Tell Their Own Story.

"To any one who knows his New York," remarked an elderly local inhabitant, "there is no better opportunity to study the tragedies in men's lives than in one of our cemeteries. I stopped in front of one great tomb the other day in Woodlawn, attracted partly by the beauty of the design of the tomb and partly, I confess, by the name of the family engraved on the principal sarcophagus. It was that of one of the wealthiest families in this city, whose name is known over the country, since it is attached to an article of food that almost every one uses. And yet when I studied the story told by four of the tombstones, I could not help but think how little happiness the man, who is the only member of his family left, could have with all his fortune."

"One stone bore the name of the youngest child, who had lived less than a year. The second showed that another boy had died the day he was born. The third showed that a third child, a boy, had lived to be 19, while the fourth stone covered his wife. There was a fifth stone, bare of any name, and I could not help wondering if the head of that house was not simply waiting for the time to come when he would rest beneath it, and the tragedy of his loneliness be ended."

One Kind of Man.

At a dinner in Newport Rear Admiral Evans spoke with scorn of a young man who had married an old woman for her money.

"That chap calls himself a man, I suppose," said the great sea fighter, "but there are various definitions of the word man, and the definition that Pebbles one."

"A Scot of Pebbles said to his friend MacAndrew: 'Mac, I hear ye have fallen in love wi' bonny Kate McAllister.' 'Weel, Sanders, Mac replied, 'I was near-verra near dooin' it; but the bit lassie had nae siller, so I said to myself, 'Mac, me mon.' And I was a mon, and nae I pass her by wi' silent contempt.'"

Literary Treasure Found.

The custodian of the royal library in Vienna found, the other day, in a pile of unsorted parchment, a valuable manuscript of the thirteenth century—about 300 lines of a versified translation of the Bible into the Bavarian-Alemannic dialect, made by Rudolf von Embs in Switzerland. Its importance lies in the fact that this was really the first Bible version into German.

RULINGS ON MEAT INSPECTION LAW

CARRIERS MUST HAVE CERTIFICATES WITH SHIPMENTS.

FARMERS NEED NO LABELS

Have Right to Ship Carcasses of Animals in Interstate or Foreign Commerce Either Personally or Through Their Agents.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Some important rulings were announced Tuesday by the department of agriculture under the meat inspection law. The rulings come under the heads of "Transportation," "Casings," "Labels," and "Definitions." In brief, the rulings provide as follows:

"No shipment of meat or meat food products shall be accepted for transportation in interstate commerce by any carrier until the carrier has received from the shipper a certificate in one of the forms prescribed in the regulations.

"When it is desired to divert a shipment of inspected and marked meat or meat food products from the original destination, such diversion may be made without inspection if a new certificate showing the changed destination be given to the carrier by the owner or shipper.

Shipments by Farmers.

"The right of the farmer to ship in interstate or foreign commerce the carcasses of animals slaughtered on the farm is a right personal to the farmer and applies to the shipment of carcasses of such animals in interstate or foreign commerce only when such carcasses are shipped by the farmer or his agent.

"Wholesale dealers, who are not acting as agents for farmers, but who own carcasses of animals slaughtered by a farmer on the farm, may not re-ship said carcasses in interstate or foreign commerce.

"Reshipments of inspected meat and meat food products which are sound and wholesome at the time of reshipment may be made without inspection, when the meat or meat food products, or the containers thereof, are marked "U. S. Inspected and Passed," and the meat or meat food products have not been processed, other than by smoking, since they were originally shipped.

Explains Interstate Commerce.

"The transportation of meat or meat food products from one point in a state or territory to another point in the same state or territory, when in course of shipment the meat or meat food product is taken through another state or territory, is interstate commerce, and brings the said transportation within the scope of the meat inspection law and regulations.

"Unfilled casings" shall be regarded as containers and not as meat food products, but when such casings are to be exported to a foreign country which requires a certificate showing that the casings are products of animals which were free from contagious disease at time of slaughter, the necessary stamps, and a certificate will be issued by the inspector in charge.

Use of Labels.

"Labels or stickers, bearing the inspection legend, separate and apart from the trade label, may, under the supervision of a department employee, be used on inspected and passed meats which are wrapped in paper or cloth or which are placed in pasteboard containers. But no such label or stickers, bearing an inspection legend, can be used in establishments where inspection is not maintained.

"Products not classed as meat food products which are prepared at establishments where inspection is not maintained, and which contain small quantities of meats which have been inspected and passed under the meat inspection law and no other meats, may bear a label with a personal statement of the manufacturer that the meat contained therein has been inspected and passed at an establishment where inspection is maintained.

Must Show Correct Weight.

"No label will be approved for use after January 1, next, which contains an incorrect or false statement of the weight of the package, or which does not show the weight, if given, is net or gross.

"When the words 'Meat' or 'Meat food products' are used in the regulations or rulings of the secretary of agriculture, they mean meat or meat food products of cattle, sheep, swine, or goats and do not include meat or meat food products of other animals.

"Nonedible grease and nonedible tallow, derived from cattle, sheep, swine or goats, are not considered meat food products.

VICTIMS OF WRECK NOW FIFTY-EIGHT

BODIES OF THREE WOMEN TAKEN FROM THIRD CAR.

LOSES ENTIRE FAMILY

While Signing Receipt for Effects of Wife and Son Man Is Killed Upon to Identify Remains of Mother.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 31.—The contention of Coroner Gaskill that a number of persons who lost their lives in the electric train wreck on the Thoroughfare bridge may be buried in the mud where the cars plunged, was borne out late Tuesday, when the bodies of Mrs. Paul Felsberg, Mrs. Selma Johnson and that of Mrs. Sarah Miller were recovered from under the third car. This car hung from the abutment in the center of the bridge, with its nose in the mud, and when the workmen were trying to lift it from the water the bodies worked loose.

That of Mrs. Miller was pinned fast in the wreckage, but that of Mrs. Felsberg floated up to the view of the workmen. Mrs. Johnson's body was found some time later, caught under the wreckage. All were cut and battered.

Dead Now Number 58.

The finding of these bodies increases the official identified dead to 51, and the total number of bodies recovered to 54. There are still known to be among the dead the bodies of Mrs. Frank Monroe, three-year-old Joseph McElroy, H. N. Burch and Arman Alexis Tedesco, which makes the certain number of dead in the wreck to be 55, there still remaining at various mortuaries three unclaimed bodies.

The finding of the body of Mrs. Miller was followed at the temporary morgue by one of the most pathetic scenes in the entire heartrending affair. Mrs. Miller, who was in poor health, had taken the trip to the sea on the electric train with her daughter-in-law and grandson, Leslie. The elder Mrs. Miller's son was here Tuesday to get the effects of his wife and son and arrange about the shipment of the bodies, when the body of his mother was brought in. He was signing for the effects of his wife and son when the police learned of the recovery of the bodies. Miller identified the body of his mother, and almost collapsed after crying out that he was left alone in the world.

Only One Unidentified.

The police, in going over the effects of some of the victims at the city hall, found a letter in the pockets of a garment taken from one of the unidentified bodies. It was addressed to William Granning, Penn. Door Sash company, Twenty-fifth and Calowhill streets, and was written by a brother. This apparently identifies one of the unclaimed victims. The body is in charge of Undertaker Thompson on Chelsea.

The one absolutely unidentified and unclaimed body, at Crowley's morgue, is that of a man about 42 years old, weighing about 200 pounds.

While there has been no report of ghouls at the wreck, the police report a mean theft that bears upon the affair. While the body of Edward Kline of Arctic avenue lay unidentified, thieves broke into his cottage and looted it on Monday night.

Aside from the search for the bodies, interest now centers on the inquest which will be held by Coroner Gaskill on Thursday morning. While he will not express an opinion before the inquiry as to the cause of the accident, it appears from his statement that he is convinced the bridge on which the accident occurred is not as it should be, and may have to be rebuilt.

Resolution of Sympathy.

That the officials of the city generally want a most rigid inquiry, so that responsibility for the accident may be placed, is shown by the action of councils in adopting resolutions, expressing sympathy for the bereaved and embodying the following:

Resolved: That every officer of the city government who, by reason of his presence in the work of rescue, or for any other reason, can give assistance to the county officials, charged with the work of determining the cause of this disaster, is hereby directed to give such assistance in order that those responsible for the appalling loss of life may be punished and the lives of railroad passengers safeguarded.

The central figures in the inquiry on Thursday will probably be Daniel Stewart, the old bridge tender, and John Spiker, the towerman, who operates the signals. Stewart declares positively that he locked the draw properly after the schooner yacht Sinbad passed through, and the railroad officials say that in any event the signal for safety would not have been set when the train came along had the rails not been right. John Spiker, the towerman, when asked about this, said that he could not see the tracks clearly enough from his position to know whether the tracks were in line, but he said he got the signal from the tender that they were all right and gave the train a clear track.

UTE INDIANS INTRENCHED

TROOPS PREPARE TO CLOSE IN ON THE REDSKINS.

Renegades Have Strong Position in Hills Adjacent to Arvada, Wyo., and Propose to Fight.

Arvada, Wyo., Oct. 31.—The renegade Ute Indians are intrenched in a strong position in the hills adjacent to Arvada and the Tenth and Sixth cavalry troops are reconnoitering the country preparatory to closing in on the redskins.

Apparently the object of the troops is to awe the Indians with a display of superior force and thus secure the surrender of the Indians without bloodshed.

The Utes are determined not to give in to the soldiers until they have to, believing if they would it will mean their return to Utah, where they say they cannot secure enough to eat.

The Utes have been active in laying in a large supply of ammunition at Cheyenne and Gillette, together with provisions, and if the temper of the leading tribesmen can be taken as an indication, they propose to fight, or at least make a show of resistance, and secure concessions from the soldiers and be permitted to make their way to the Cheyenne reservation and remain there pending their disposition by Washington. The Utes are not painted, nor are they dancing.

Moorehead advises that a panic is on there and the women and children are being removed from the scene of the trouble. It is feared that in the event of a clash between the soldiers and Indians, the Indians will scatter and work their vengeance upon the settlers. The ranches are being converted into fortresses, and every precaution taken to meet the Indians if they come that way.

TREASURER TREAT'S REPORT FOR YEAR

SURPLUS OF OVER $25,000,000 SHOWN FOR 1906.

MONETARY STOCK GROWS

Nearly $200,000,000 Added to Country's Supply, of Which Was in Gold, Making the Aggregate Over $3,000,000,000.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, submitted his annual report to the secretary of the treasury Tuesday, and in reference to the more noticeable transactions said in part:

"The net result of the ordinary revenues and expenditures for the fiscal year 1906 was a surplus of $25,669,322, as compared with a deficit of $22,004,228 for the preceding year. A continuation of those favorable conditions is reflected in the transactions for the first quarter of the current fiscal year in which their revenues were $5,781,314 in excess of the expenditures.

"The available cash balance on June 30, 1906, was $139,659,354, an increase of $35,211,802 as compared with that of twelve months earlier.

Supply of Money.

"The monetary stock of the country took on a growth during the year of $186,866,727, of which $118,050,777 was in gold, $5,450,396 in silver and $68,365,554 in national bank notes, while the treasury notes decreased $2,027,000. The aggregate stock of money at the close of the year was $3,069,976,591, of which $2,736,646,625 was in circulation.

"The national bank deposits have been utilized during the year as a medium through which the excessive accumulation of money in the treasury was restored to the channels of trade. About the 1st of April an unusual stringency in the money market was relieved by the temporary increase of public deposits, with depositary banks to enable them to import gold. Through this aid, more than $49,000,000 in gold was imported. The balance in banks to the credit of the general fund May 5 was $102,703,123, the highest point reached during the fiscal year.

Fail to Issue Small Notes.

"The national bank notes presented for redemption during the year amounted to $296,292,585, as against $308,298,760 in 1905.

"The national banks have not issued $5 notes to the limit allowed by law and thereby have forced upon the treasury the burden of supplying the smaller denominations required by the business interests of the country. However, in response to the appeal of the secretary of the treasury the banks have increased the volume of their $5 notes.

"The treasury holdings of gold continues to attract the attention of financiers both at home and abroad. It is apparent from the continued accumulation that a large share of the product of the gold mines of the world is brought to the United States. The gold coin and bullion in the treasury June 30, 1906, amounted to $706,592,389, and at the close of the fiscal year 1906 it had advanced to $807,051,690. By October 26 it attained a maximum at $877,296,238.

Paper Currency Increase.

"The United States paper currency issued amounted to $629,896,000, and the redemptions were $577,445,100, a net increase in the volume outstanding of $52,450,900.

"The pressure from bankers and others for larger and more regular supply of small denominations of currency continues unabated, while the treasury is without resources for the issue of small bills to comply with their urgent requests. It is to be expected that congress will ultimately enact the legislation that it has under consideration, which will bring full relief from the existing conditions."

Manufacture of Tantalum.

The manufacture of tantalum, one of the hardest metals known, into sheets and bars is now, it is said, being practiced in Germany by the squaring process, the material in its original powdered form being mixed with water and gum tragacanth, and then successfully forced into rods and shapes as desired.

A moment later Mr. Mitchell entered, to find both girls seated in the most dignified manner, reading novels. Walking over to Emily, he stooped and kissed her lightly on the forehead, whispering, "My Queen." Next he peeped at Dora on the head as she would put a child.

"Emily, I have taken the liberty of telling a friend of mine that he might call here. You do not mind?"

"Why, of course not, Roy." She had made this name for him by eliminating the first syllable of his second name, Leroy. She told him that thus she could call him King without humiliating it to the world. Almost immediately the bell sounded again, and Mr. Barnes was introduced. Mr. Mitchell presented him to the two ladies, and then devoted himself to Dora; thus leaving the detective perfectly free to converse with Emily. Being well educated and having traveled through England early in life, Mr. Barnes soon made himself at ease and talked like any society man. Presently Mr. Mitchell took Dora to the window and stood there looking out and chatting, apparently absorbed and unobtrusive of the others. Mr. Barnes decided that this was his opportunity.

"Pardon me, Miss Remsen, and let the interest of a collector excuse the impertinence of my noticing that beautiful pin which you wear. Cameos, I think, are too little appreciated nowadays. They are passed by, while statuettes bring fancy prices. Yet does it not require exquisite skill to carve so small an object?"

"I agree with you, Mr. Barnes, and am not at all angry with you for admiring my pin. You may look at it if you wish." Saying which she took it off and handed it to him. It was the facsimile of those which Mr. Mitchell wore as buttons, save that it bore the image of Shakespeare. The cameo was mounted in a gold frame, and surrounded by diamonds made a beautiful ornament. "You would never guess, Mr. Barnes, that that was once an ordinary button!"

Mr. Barnes assumed an expression of surprise as though the idea was entirely new to him. All he said was:

"It may have been a button, but surely never an ordinary one."

"Well, no, not an ordinary one, of course," I suppose you know that I am engaged to your friend?"

Mr. Barnes assented with a bow, and Emily continued:

"Shortly after we became engaged I went to Europe, and while there I came across a jeweler who produced the most beautiful carvings in cameo and intaglio. I ordered a set made to be used for buttons."

"All similar to this?"

"Similar, but not identical. This one has Shakespeare's head. The others represent Romeo and Juliet."

Mr. Barnes determined upon a bold stroke. Taking the button from his pocket and handing it to Emily he said quietly:

"Here is a cameo of Juliet. Perhaps it may interest you?"

"Why, this is extraordinary! It is one of my set!"

"One of yours. Why have you lost one? How many did you have?"

"There were seven, including this one of Shakespeare. The other six—Here she stopped and colored deeply.

"Miss Remsen, you think that is one of the original set. If so, of course it is yours, and I should be glad to restore it to you. But have you lost one?"

"Lost one? No—that is, I don't know." She seemed much confused and looked intently at the button. Suddenly her whole expression changed and with her self-possession fully restored she started Mr. Barnes by saying: "I am mistaken. This is not one of the original set. You did not know what to think. Did she admit that there might be some danger in admitting that there was a seventh button? Had that matchless schemer Mitchell set her a note warning her to say that there were but seven in the original set? He could not decide at once, but hazarded one more stroke.

"Miss Remsen, I have seen your portrait, and it struck me that that button is a copy of it. What do you think?"

The girl once more became confused and stammered: "I don't know."

Then, suddenly, and with complete composure again, she said: "Yes, I think you are right. This is a copy from my picture. This portrait was made last summer, and afterward I allowed the artist to exhibit it. I think photographs were made from it, and possibly some cameo cutter has used it for his work."

This was ingenious, but not satisfactory to Mr. Barnes, for he knew that it was far from probable that another gem cutter should have used the picture and then have called it Juliet. Besides, it would have been too great a coincidence to make a button of it. He decided, therefore, that the girl was doing the best she could to invent a plausible explanation to a question which Mr.

Mitchell himself had simply refused to answer. Not wishing to arouse any suspicion in her mind that he doubted her word, he replied quickly:

"That is very likely, and surely he could not have chosen a better face for his subject."

"Mr. Barnes," said Emily, "you offered just now to give me this, thinking that I had lost it. Of course I should not accept a present from one whom I have had the pleasure of knowing for so short a time, but you are Mr. Mitchell's friend, and as I would really prefer not to have my portrait in the hands of strangers I accept your gift with thanks."

This was entirely unexpected. When Mr. Barnes had made the remark that he would be glad to restore her her own, he had done so feeling safe, because to obtain it she would need to admit that she had lost it. Now it seemed that she had deprived him of his piece of evidence. He did not know what to say when Mr. Mitchell walked across to them and remarked pleasantly:

"Well, Emily, do you find my friend Mr. Barnes entertaining?"

"Mr. Barnes has been most agreeable, Roy, and, see, he has actually given me a present," saying which she handed the button to Mr. Mitchell, across whose countenance Mr. Barnes thought he saw a fleeting smile of triumph pass.

"I am proud of you, Emily. You command homage wherever you extend your influence. Do you know, Mr. Barnes refused to give this cameo to me only this morning. You can guess why I wanted it?"

"Because it has my picture copied on it?"

"Exactly. Mr. Barnes, allow me to add my thanks to those of Miss Remsen. You can readily appreciate why we prefer to have this bauble in our own possession?"

Mr. Barnes thought that he could. He saw that he was fairly caught, and that he could do nothing without making a scene. He met a glance from Mr. Mitchell which he knew was meant to remind him of his promise not to annoy Miss Remsen. He had about decided that he had been a fool to make such a promise and to have visited the place at all when he suddenly changed his mind as a servant announced:

"Mr. Alphonse Thaurer."

Immediately the detective remembered the name. It was upon the card given to him by the Frenchman who had left the train at Stamford. He was watching Mr. Mitchell when the newcomer was thus unexpectedly announced, and he thought he detected a glance of displeasure. Were these two then acquainted, accomplices perhaps?

Mr. Mitchell let me present Mr. Thaurer," said Dora.

"I have had the pleasure of meeting the gentleman before," replied Mr. Mitchell, and with a stiff bow he crossed to the side of Emily, as though to prevent an introduction to her. This of course was impossible, and Mr. Mitchell was plainly annoyed. Emily stepped forward, extended her hand to Mr. Thaurer, and then, turning, presented him to Mr. Barnes, who had arisen, and who simply bowed.

"Ah! Mr. Barnes," said the Frenchman, "I am delighted to meet you again."

"Why, do you know Mr. Barnes also?" cried Dora, greatly surprised.

"Who does not know Mr. Barnes, the celebrated detective?" He said this in that extremely polite tone so much assumed by his race when inclined to be most complimentary. Yet Mr. Barnes thought that he had some sinister motive in thus proclaiming his connection with the police. Was it to prevent him from calling upon these women again? If so, he failed to make the desired impression on Dora, for that young woman seemed fairly enraptured.

"A detective?" said she. "Are you really the great Mr. Barnes?"

"I am a detective, but scarcely a great one."

"Oh, but you are, you are! I read all about the wonderful way in which you caught that man Pettinelli! And now tell me, are you going to catch the man who robbed the woman on the Boston train yesterday?"

"How do you know that it is a man?" asked Mr. Barnes, amused at her impetuosity and pleased at the turn taken by the conversation.

"Oh, it is not a woman! I am sure of that. I read about it in the papers this morning. I bought three, so as not to miss anything. No woman would have been clever enough to plan it all, and then carry it out so thoroughly."

"This is very interesting," said Mr. Thaurer. "Of course, I, too, have read the papers, but besides that, as you know, Mr. Barnes, I was on the train myself, and the first to be searched. I have thought of the case ever since. In my own country we claim that our detectives can unravel any mystery, and I am curious to know how you will manage in an affair of this kind. The thief evidently is clever; do you not think so?"

Mr. Mitchell had drawn apart and apparently was absorbed in a conversation with Emily. Nevertheless Mr. Barnes was confident that he missed little of what was being said by the group of which he himself was one. Under ordinary circumstances he would not for a moment have thought of speaking of so important a case before one who at least might be suspected of complicity. But these were not ordinary circumstances. Here were two men, about both of whom there was a mysterious connection with the crime, or crimes, which he was investigating. If either, or both, were guilty, it was evident from their conversation in visiting unconcernedly at the very building in which the murder had been committed that extreme skill would be required to obtain a conviction. The detective therefore considered that these men must be met with methods as bold as their own. Speaking in a tone loud enough to reach Mr. Mitchell's ears he said:

"I think that the thief is clever, but that he is not so clever as he considers himself."

"How is that?"

"He believed—I say he, because, like Miss Remsen, I think it is a man."

"How delightful of you to agree with me," said Dora.

"This man, then," continued Mr. Barnes, "considers that he has misled me. He thinks that when I directed that all the passengers should be searched I did so hoping to find the lost jewels, whereas I was not looking for the jewels, but for the thief."

"How could you do that?"

"You may think me egotistic, but I hoped to detect him by his conduct. I was entirely successful. I know who stole the jewels." This was a bold assertion, especially as Mr. Barnes had not decided the matter in his own mind. He wished to note the faces of these men when he made the statement. He gained nothing by the maneuver, for Mr. Mitchell seemed not to have heard, while the Frenchman quickly said:

"Bravo! Bravo! You are better than Leocq. It is like a wizard's trick. You pass the suspects before you in review, and then, presto! you pick out the criminal with your eye. That is a charming method, and so simple!"

"Mr. Thaurer," said Dora, "you are laughing at Mr. Barnes, and that is not good natured. Mr. Barnes says he knows the thief. I believe him."

"Pardon! I believe him also. I did not mean to laugh. But tell me, Mr. Barnes, how did the man secrete the diamonds, were they not?"

"Diamonds and other jewels. But let me ask you—how would you have hidden them had you been in his place?" This time the shot went home. Plainly the Frenchman did not like the suggestion of being himself the criminal. He quickly recovered his equanimity, however, and answered:

"Do you know, I have thought of that very thing. Of course I would probably make a bundle of it. Still I have thought of a way."

"A way by which he could have hidden the jewels, so that a search could not have found them, and yet in a place accessible to himself afterward?"

"I think so. Perhaps I am wrong, but I think my little plan would do that much. The newspaper says the jewels were not seen. I should have pushed them into the cake of soap in the washroom. No one would think to look for them there, and even if so, there would be nothing against me. Afterward I should have gone back, taken the soap, and the jewels would have been mine."

"You are mistaken."

"How so?"

Wild Flowers in Alaska.

The wild flowers of Alaska are the most beautiful in the world. The season lasts only three months, but during that time bluebells, honeysuckle, wild roses, sweet peas, and myrtle run riot over the hills and bloom even at the foot of a glacier. The ground is perpetually frozen and about two feet, thaws out during the summer season. The melting ice furnishes plenty of moisture and the warm sun makes nature jump.—Leslie's Weekly.

ALL-IMPORTANT

FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private life to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years under her direction, and since her decease her advice has been freely given to sick women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private troubles, and thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result:

First letter.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have a severe female trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."

Second letter.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me."

BEST EQUIPPED TROOPS

American Soldiers Sent to Cuba Have Finest Weapons.

NEW BAYONET IS BUSINESSLIKE.

Sharp on Both Edges and Not Intended For Ornament—Latest Army Rifle the Deadliest in Use—Machine Guns With Each Regiment Can Do Very Effective Work.

American troops sent to Havana have been prepared for warlike operations in Cuba with the finest equipment of arms and ordinance that any army of the United States has ever carried, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Globe.

The rifles, machine guns and field artillery of the troops sent to Cuba will represent the highest type of deadly scientific inventions. No European army has ever gone into a campaign with weapons of equal merit, and it is doubtful if any European army today has weapons of equal merit available.

Not a single weapon that was carried by the American soldier of 1898, when he went to Cuba, will be carried by the soldier of 1906 who has been sent to Havana. Everything is more modern, bearing the stamp of latest improvement. Even the revolver used by the officers is a newer type of Colt's manufacture. The troops, infantry, cavalry and all will carry the new magazine rifle, sometimes called the new Springfield. For the first time in the history of the army, infantry and cavalry have the same weapon, the cavalry having hitherto used the carbine, a shorter weapon than the army rifle. The new rifle is considered by experts the deadliest army rifle in use. It is of 30 caliber, has the best features of the Mauser and the Krag, is simpler than the Krag and has a much higher muzzle velocity. The Cuban insurgent, taking refuge behind an eighteen inch tree, will not be safe from its bullet, such is its terrific force. It is fitted out with another ugly weapon in the shape of a sixteen inch knife bayonet. This bayonet is sharp on both edges and is not intended for ornament.

President Roosevelt and high army officers, reading the account of the Russo-Japanese war and finding the bayonet was not obsolete, but still much in vogue in modern warfare, concluded the rifle bayonet with which it was at first determined to equip the new rifle should not do at all. Reaching this conclusion, it was decided to devise a bayonet that when used would be effective. The new sixteen inch product is the result.

But the new army rifle is no further advanced in military excellence than the new three inch field gun. General Crozier, chief of ordinance, considers it superior to the field gun used by any other army. It has a recoil cylinder and shoots a fifteen pound shell, having a bursting radius of fifty yards. Long range and great accuracy are other features of the weapon. The recoil arrangement is so perfect that an artilleryman can set a glass of water on a wheel of the gun and fire twenty shots a minute without spilling the water. A sheet of steel is arranged to shield the gunners.

The mountain guns are also new and powerful weapons. They have a 2.05 inch caliber and shoot a fifteen pound projectile, but have a lower range than the field gun proper. The piece itself is carried on one mule, the carriage on another and the ammunition on other mules. The artillerymen walk. A mountain battery can be carried over trails almost inaccessible and through mountain paths where men hesitate to venture.

Then, too, for the first time the army is entering a campaign with a machine gun detachment for each regiment. Hitherto there has been no system to the handling of the machine guns. Under the new arrangement a detachment of twenty-one men is detailed to each regiment to handle the machine weapons. These are Vickers-Maxim guns of the same caliber as the new army rifle. They are mounted on tripods when in use and are so effective that an experienced man using one can saw a board in two at a half mile.

Army officers are much interested in the question of just what arms the Cubans have. Ten thousand Winchester of the same caliber as the Krag rifle have been sent to Cuba since the present trouble, and through third parties this government has sold a large supply of Krag cartridges to the Cubans, presumably for use of government forces there. This government disposed in this way of a number of old machine guns of 45 caliber, the same caliber as the old Springfield rifle, and ammunition for these guns. If all these weapons are at Havana, where they can easily be taken over by the American forces, there will be no difficulty.

In the present disorderly state it might happen that some of these weapons got into the hands of elements hostile to this country, and the result would not be calculated to aid in the movement to bring peace and order to the island. Until it is definitely known what has become of all this equipment army officers will not be entirely easy in their minds. A few thousand magazine rifles out in the Cuban provinces in the hands of a lot of irresponsible revolutionists might prove a serious menace to a regime of quietude.

Sport Review.

Bill Squires Coming to Meet O'Brien—New Baseball Invention.

Emil Kinst, a New York baseball fan, has invented a new bat, with which he claims that every ball player can have a 300 batting average, and the pitchers will not have a look-in. The new swatter's aid is slightly curved and is the same size as the ordinary bat.

The curve is what does the work, according to Mr. Kinst. The manner in which the curve is placed determines how the ball is to go. When a batter learns the secret of the new stick he can command the ball. He can make a dead "bat," a fly to right field, a grounder to center or a liner to left, just as he pleases.

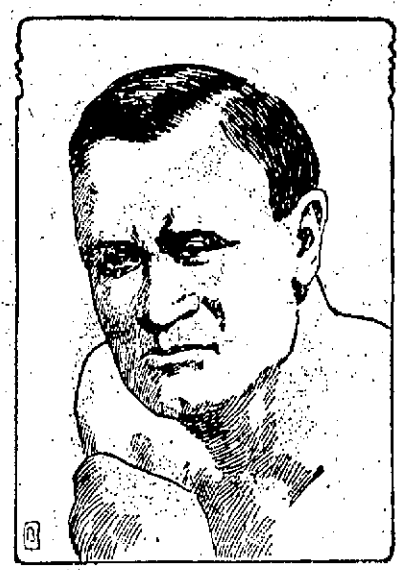

As yet no big league player has given the bat a test, but Mr. Kinst says that several of the clubs will give it a try out on the spring training trips.

Manager McCarey of the Pacific Athletic club of Los Angeles is advocating a meeting of the leading fight promoters of the world to rearrange the weights in the several divisions, classify the fighters and arrange battles to adjust the disputed titles. McCarey may decide to call a meeting at Los Angeles this winter and invite the fight promoters of the world to join him in making these changes and rounding up the fighters.

Fitzsimmons has received an offer from Jimmy Coffroth to meet Sam Berger in a bout on the Pacific coast, and if the freckled fellow's theatrical engagements are not too pressing he may accept.

Bill Squires, the heavyweight champion of Australia, is a persistent pugilist.

When he received word that "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien would not go to Australia to fight him for the purse of $10,000 which was offered by a syndicate of sporting men of that country Squires immediately packed up his trunk and departed on the first steamer from Australia for Los Angeles.

Melvin Sheppard's half mile run in 1 minute 53 3/5 seconds at Travers Island, New York, recently, was the greatest performance at the distance the world has ever seen. True, Kilpatrick's great race in 1895 was one-fifth of a second faster, but look at the difference in the conditions under which the two athletes made their records. Kilpatrick had a warm, still day, perfect pace and the excitement of international competition to spur him on. He was paced the first quarter by Harry S. Lyons, who could run any distance and then tell you to within a fifth of a second what time he had made. Lyons was told to pull Kilpatrick along the first "440" in fifty-four seconds, and he did it to the dot.

Sheppard ran under entirely different conditions. First of all, the day was bad. It was damp, and a cold wind swept in from Long Island sound. Teevan, who paced Sheppard, is just as good a runner as Lyons, but does not possess the power to judge exactly how fast he is going. In consequence Sheppard was fifty-six seconds in going the first half of the race. This was about two seconds too long. To prove this contention it is only necessary to note Sheppard's condition in the last 100 yards of the race. He sprinted like a demon and was in no way distressed upon finishing.

It is safe to assert that had the Philadelphia boy done his trial under the same conditions as did Kilpatrick, our half mile record would be under 1 minute 53 seconds today. To realize what a wonderful half mile Sheppard is it is only necessary to compare his ability with that of other men who have made names for themselves in the distance. There is little doubt that he could trim such men as Hollister, Kilpatrick, Workman and Cornwallis. To men like Crabbe of England, Parsons of Yale and Lightbody of Chicago he could easily allow fifteen yards, while thirty would be a fair allowance to such sterling performers as Pilgrim and Jim Miller of the New York Athletic club and Joe Bromilow. Sheppard is more than forty yards better than a two minute man, and any one who has done two minutes is rated in championship class.

FOOTBALL TALK OF THE VARSITY TEAM

Much Encouragement is Given by the Varsity of the Players.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Oct. 31.—Confidence is rapidly taking the place of fright in the University of Wisconsin football camp, with reference to the intercollegiate game with the University of Iowa here next Saturday. The badgers have taken a great bound forward since the coaching assistance of the old "grubs" was called into requisition by Dr. Hutchins. In fact, while the head coach has by no means surrendered any of his authority, he has allowed Dr. Charles McCarthy and A. C. Lerum to assume authority in a way that has greatly surprised people here. McCarthy is handling the backfield players and Lerum is working with the line, while Coach Hutchins makes suggestions at will. Lerum is doing all the talking to the men in the line and Dr. McCarthy is urging the four men behind to "get a move on." This change is the more interesting in the light of incidents related here which seem to indicate that Dr. Hutchins had great confidence in himself and was somewhat jealous of being assisted by old stars of Wisconsin. Recently "Johnnie" Gregg, the famous badger quarterback of nearly a decade ago, was introduced to the new coach, and remarked:

"Well, Dr. Hutchins, if you are able to bring a winning team out of that bunch of material this season, you will make a great reputation for yourself with all the students and alumni of Wisconsin."

"O," was the quick reply, "but you must understand that I made my reputation in the east before I came to Wisconsin."

The emphasis placed on the word "east" caused the former badger star to wonder, and the story has not added to the popularity of the Syracuse doctor of philosophy here. However, the Wisconsin eleven is so far ahead of what it was a week ago that there is much less fear abroad in the prospect of the Iowa contest. The faculty has shown a favorable spirit by removing the ban of deficient scholarship from Stuehm, center; Miller and Zeissler, halfbacks. One of these halfbacks will come in handy to replace Curtin, who is out of the game with a sprained ankle.

PORTO RICO GROWN BY AMERICAN HELP

Production of Sugar and Tobacco Increased Because of the Demand in United States.

Washington, D. C., October 31.—Conditions of production and commerce in Porto Rico and the growth in the trade of that island are discussed in a report which has been received by the Spanish consul in Porto Rico in a report which has reached the Department of Commerce and Labor. Commenting upon the rapid growth in exports from the island which have practically doubled in the last few years, he says:

"This increase is due principally to the large quantities of sugar exported to the United States. Besides, there was shipped to that country tobacco, leather and manufactured goods, the value of which was $2,577,182, a great quantity of native fruit, straw hats, embroidery and open-work. Commerce with foreign countries, the value of which was $6,592,046 in 1903-4 amounted to only $5,283,872 in 1904-5. There can be no doubt that this loss of foreign trade was due mainly to the tariff arrangement applying to the island, by reason of which the United States was able to monopolize the trade in a considerable number of articles to the exclusion of goods of European origin so that the commerce of Porto Rico on the import side may be said to be nearly all with the United States."

The output of leaf tobacco has been greater this year than that of the year 1903-4, being marketed under extremely favorable conditions. The present methods used by the growers leave much to be desired; experiments carried on by the Americans have taught the natives that fertilizers are a powerful and almost indispensable factor for attaining quantity and quality, with the result that they have begun to use good fertilizers on lands given to the cultivation of tobacco."

Nut Growers' Meeting. Scranton, Miss., Oct. 31.—Members of the National Nut Growers' association from many states are gathered here for their fifth annual convention. NEW STORY THAT IS TOLD IN NEW JERSEY

Bit of Chatter That Reflects on La Follette's Real Methods.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Newark, N. J., Oct. 31.—There is considerable comment among those who keep in touch with political gossip upon the fact that while he was justly engaged in his somewhat Quixotic effort to trim the tentacles of the octopus in New Jersey, Senator La Follette accepted the hospitality of Mr. J. F. Freeman, of East Orange, who is one of the large stockholders in the Standard Oil company, and, until recently, was its treasurer. There are those who ask themselves how sincere can be the denunciation of the Standard Oil company and its friends, from the man who becomes the guest of a man as prominently identified with its interests as Mr. Freeman. Among people who recognize the finer laws of hospitality, the opinion prevails that Senator La Follette either "violated his convictions" or his duty as a guest.

VANITY

From time immemorial moralists have railed at the vanity of woman. Here is a woman, and a beautiful one at that, who says that vanity is an imperishable instinct; that vanity, like love, is one of the great forces that makes the world go round; that to be vain is a duty to humanity and an essential of success.

It's an original view; what is your opinion? This defense of an old time sin is set forth in our new magazine—
